PREFACE

This publication is the result of an investigation to determine what artifacts and archives and sites with relevance to medical history are in the possession of the many historical societies in the State of New Jersey. Assuming that there was a significant amount of these items and places, it was considered to be a worthwhile project for the Medical History Society of New Jersey (MHSNJ) to conduct a survey to ascertain what these "resources" are and where they are located, and then make this information public.

Through the kind cooperation and encouragement of Bernard Bush, MLS, and Dorothy E. Pietrowski, then President and Membership Chair, respectively, of the League of Historical Societies of New Jersey (LHSNJ), 265 historical societies and other organizations affiliated with the LHSNJ, were canvassed for what they might have which would be applicable for the intended directory. In due course, several other organizations not affiliated with the LHSNJ but suspected of having or known to have holdings which would be of interest, were invited to participate in this project.

Survey questionnaires were mailed and distributed to all member organizations of the LHSNJ. While only 18 percent were returned, almost three-quarters had at least one item which related to medical history. The potential significance of the artifacts, archives, and other resources identified in the survey fulfills the goal of the project: the survey has identified and located resources for researchers and others interested in the medical history of the State of New Jersey. This guide may also be useful to students and tourists who can use the publication as a directory of unique science and medicine-related places of interest not normally found in travel guides.

While not in the scope of this directory, collections of industrial organizations should be mentioned. The holdings of pharmaceutical companies would be excellent sources for information on antibiotics, antisepsis, birth control, hormones, patent medicines, snake venoms, steroids, surgical technology, vaccines, vitamins and other medically-related subjects. The archives of such commercial enterprises may provide insights to their attitudes about health and medicine and certainly would have data on their research, production, and marketing. In addition, the artifacts they have accumulated might, in a sense, be a material history of their accomplishments. C.R. Bard in New Providence, Bristol-Myers Squibb in Princeton, Johnson and Johnson in New Brunswick, Merck in Whitehouse Station, Schering-Plough in Kenilworth, and Warner-Lambert in Morris Plains are just a few of these companies.

Also not included in this directory are hospitals. A number of hospitals in New Jersey have deposited a variety of records with members of the LHSNJ or with special libraries and are cited in the text below. However, some of them may still have retained certain files of historical interest or have themselves maintained all of their archives and artifacts. They, too are not included as distinct participants in the assemblage of this guide but the reader should be informed of their existence. The Clara Maass Medical Center in Belleville and the Helene Fuld Medical Center in Trenton are examples of such institutions.

Only eight sites of medical historical interest were uncovered for this directory and are described below. There is one other place not included in the text of this guide that ought to be noted here and that is Ellis Island. The United States Supreme Court, in The State of New Jersey, Plaintiff, versus The State of New York on a Bill of Complaint, ruled on May 26, 1998 that New Jersey had sovereignty over Ellis Island land produced by fill. Such land includes buildings in which were located hospital wards for contagious diseases, mental illness, and other medical conditions as well as administration facilities. These buildings are in such a deteriorated state that, at this time, they are not open to the public! The closest would-be visitors may get to the buildings is the ferry slip from which they can be viewed.

Despite the litigation involving New Jersey and New York and the division of land and buildings between those States, Ellis Island is owned and operated by the Federal Government and questions about seeing the medical buildings must be addressed to The Superintendent, Statue of Liberty National Monument, National Park Service, Liberty Island, New York, NY 10004 (telephone (212) 363-7772). Researchers may be interested to know that the National Park Service (NPS) has initiated a program to stabilize the medical buildings if money is available through Congress and that the contents of these buildings are located in the collection of the Ellis Island Immigration Museum (the main building where immigrants underwent medical examination). For further information, call the museum (telephone (212) 363-5801, fax (212) 363-6302) or the library (telephone (212) 363-6307, fax (212) 363-8347). Records remaining from the medical facilities are in the possession of the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) in Washington, DC. These include letters concerning shipping companies and diseased passengers; plans and blueprints for Ellis Island hospitals and documents about their construction; hospital bills; and documents concerning trachoma and ringworm. Through this office of NARA, investigators may be directed to other governmental or non-governmental agencies holding Ellis Island items of medical historical interest. The NARA web site is http://www.nara.gov and the telephone number for the office concerned with Ellis Island is (202) 501-5395, extension 329, fax (202) 219-6273. There is a Regional Office of NARA in New York City but the only Ellis Island records housed there are ship passenger lists from 1820 to 1957 on microfilm.

Four indexes make this directory as "user friendly" as possible: Index of Personal Names; Index of Agencies, Municipalities, and Organizations; Index to Medical Historical Sites; and Index to Artifacts/Holdings and Key Subject Words. Numbers following an index item are the page numbers of the society or library which contributed that name or subject; the item, in fact, may be on that page or a subsequent one for that organization.

It should be kept in mind that the information provided by a contributor to this directory may only be a sample of what, in fact, that organization has. This is especially true for the large and special institutions for which it was impractical for them to send a list of all of their holdings, and for us to reproduce it. The book collections of these libraries are so extensive that reference can be made here only to the means of searching the institutions' catalogs, especially if there is online access, rather than listing the books themselves. Among the standard abbreviations one will find in the catalogs of such institutions and repeated below are: AD (autographed document); ADS (autographed document signed); AL (autographed letter); ALS (autographed letter signed); AlSs (autographed letters signed); DS (document signed); MSS (manuscripts signed).

The writer apologizes for any errors committed in reading, interpreting, and transferring information from documents sent to him for this directory, and trusts corrections will be supplied for future editions. It should be kept in mind that the names of contact persons, telephone numbers, schedules, other related data and, of course, holdings are subject to change. Suggestions for improving this work are always welcomed. It is hoped that this guide will not be a static one-time publication but, rather, it will be updated with revisions and additional information from the current contributors, and new entries from organizations, such as pharmaceutical companies and hospitals, not included in this edition.

It should be noted that this project began with a suggestion by Barbara Smith Irwin, MLS, then the Managing Librarian, Department of Special Collections, of the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (UMDNJ). She and Lois R. Densky-Wolff, MA, archivist for the UMDNJ Libraries, provided encouragement and major suggestions for carrying out the project from the time this venture was initiated through its completion. As professionals in their fields, they provided invaluable assistance as readers and critics of the numerous drafts produced as the project progressed. From the outset, the project had the approval and support of the MHSNJ Executive Committee and start-up funding from the UMDNJ - New Jersey Medical School’s Morris H. Saffron, MD, Endowment for the History of Medicine. Francis P. Chinard, MD, arranged the financial support from this endowment. Through Roberta L. Moldow, PhD, chairperson of the Department of Biology, Seton Hall University gave support to the project in various ways. John Parascandola, PhD, National Library of Medicine, Public Health Service Historian, W. Robert Ellis, Jr., BA, Archivist, NARA, and Diana Pardue, Chief, Museum Services Division on Ellis Island provided information on Ellis Island buildings, archives, and artifacts. Karen Reeds, PhD, Visiting Scholar, History Department, Columbia University, contributed information on the pharmaceutical industry. The director of this work gratefully acknowledges the contributions of all these persons, the individual respondents to the questionnaire and the organizations they represent to bringing this project to fruition. He sincerely thanks each and every one of them for without their interest, assistance, and encouragement the data could not have been obtained and this directory produced.

Publication of this directory was made possible through a grant from the New Jersey Historical Commission of the Department of State. This funding is gratefully acknowledged.

NAME: EGG HARBOR CITY HISTORICAL SOCIETY

ADDRESS: 533 London
Egg Harbor City, NJ 08215

TELEPHONE: (609) 965-9073

CONTACT: Adele M. Baden, Secretary
505 Claudius Street, Egg Harbor City, NJ 08215
(609) 965-3575

DESCRIPTION: This Corporation is organized to support and foster historical activities within the City of Egg Harbor City and its surrounding environs.

HOLDINGS: ARCHIVES: Concerning Dr. Charles Smith’s sanitarium: advertisements, photographs and postcards of buildings, serpentine creek, patients, etc.

ARTIFACTS: Furnishings, including bathing suit, chair.

SITE: NAME: Neutral Water Health Resort Sanitarium or Dr. Smith’s Sanitarium Site.

ADDRESS: Same as the Historical Society.

HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE: This health spa is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. Dr. Smith’s Sanitarium Historic Site is significant because the complex retains distinctive features of the early twentieth century health spa. Dr. Charles Smith’s Sanitarium was located on the corner of Claudius Street and London Avenue during the first quarter of the twentieth century. Dr. Smith built the sanitarium, sun house, windmill, water wheel, bath houses, and serpentine canal on the site in ca. 1905. The surviving structures — the serpentine canal and the polygonal sun house — are very unique and represent an unusual facet of early twentieth century health consciousness and treatment.

SERVICES: For site visit and research: Wednesdays, 1:00 to 5:00 pm; Saturdays, 1:00 to 4:00 pm. The collection is available but the second floor is not handicapped accessible. Photography is permitted without limits.
NAME: FRIENDS of the HERMITAGE, INC.

ADDRESS: 335 North Franklin Turnpike

DESCRIPTION: A repository for resources relating to the history of The Hermitage house and site and the persons involved with that history; support, development, and operation of the site.

HOLDINGS: ARCHIVES: Rosencrantz Family papers. Items from Dr. Elijah Rosegrant (Rosencrantz): ledger book, includes information on patients, medications (1830-1835); scrapbook articles (late 19th C.); letters from Elijah (father) to John (son) regarding academic studies (1824), medical studies (1826), hospital and surgical practice (1826), medicines (1827), completion of studies (1827), etc.; letter to John Rosegrant from Garret Terhune concerning medical education and Medical Faculty of Rutgers College (1826).

SITE: NAME: The Hermitage

ADDRESS: Same as above.

HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE: The Hermitage Site is on the State and National Register and National Trust for its architectural significance as an excellent example of the Gothic Revival style. The original Hermitage structure was renovated by architect William Ranlett in 1847, during the occupancy of the Rosencrantz family (1807-1970). The site is furnished and interpreted reflecting its occupancy in the late 19th century.

SERVICES: Hours: Monday-Friday 9:00 am to 5:00 pm and by special appointment. Collections accessible by special permission of the director. Photocopying of archives and artifacts: decisions made on an individual basis. Photography of site by permission of the director.

| DESCRIPTION | The health care-related collections of this Society are significant because they document a large and very active community of health professionals (physicians, dentists, pharmacists, etc.) and social agencies in one of the country's most populous states. This library has much to offer to researchers. |
| HOLDINGS | Until recently, the medical history subjects in the NJHS possessions, which go back to pre-revolutionary days, were not listed in a specific directory. Now, with the production of the Guide to Health Care and Social Welfare Manuscript Collections at the New Jersey Historical Society (The Library. Newark: New Jersey Historical Society, June, 1998) there is such an unprecedented resource for researchers. This indexed document contains detailed descriptions of the medical history collections and includes an appendix with finding aids and container lists. It was produced as part of a National Historical Publications and Records Commission grant project (1997-1998) to arrange, describe and catalogue the Society's health care-related collections. Information about the Society's additional manuscript collections will be found in: Skemer, Don C. and Morris, Robert C. Guide to the Manuscript Collections of the New Jersey Historical Society. Newark: New Jersey Historical Society, 1979. The following is a summary of the Society's extensive holdings. |

ARCHIVES: Account books of 19th century doctors, includes the tracking of patients for years; casebook of Marietta Woodruff, 19th century female physician; daybooks, including pharmaceutical and vaccination experiment; various papers by physicians and diverse papers on medicine, nurses and nursing, women, drugs, patent medicine, social service agencies, organizations; prescriptions from physicians in all areas of the State; personal journals from 1768 to 1930 but mostly early-mid 19th century; records of births and deaths with coroner's inquest records; lecture notes; speeches; diaries; diplomas; scrapbooks; archived materials from Revolutionary and Civil Wars. A variety of reports, records and documents — alumni association accounts, bylaws, correspondence, financial records, minutes, photographs, etc. — for a number of 19th and 20th C. orphanages, physicians, hospitals, disabled soldier homes and other organizations and institutions. These include the: Medical Society of New Jersey (est. 1766); Academy of Medicine of New Jersey; East Orange Dispensary; Essex County Pathological and Anatomical Society; New Jersey Board of Health; Newark Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary; Newark Alms House; Orange Hospital School of Nursing.

The collections include items on and from individuals and families involved in medicine such as: Jabez Campfield; James H. Clark; Lewis Condict; Congar Family; Edward P. Cooper; David Craig; J.J. Craven; George W. Cummins; Daniel Dean; De Zeng Family; Ebenezer Elmer; William Elmer; Horace Fairchild; Joseph A. Freeman; Gabriel Grant; James Hayes; Samuel Hayes; Howe Family; A.A. Howell; Sanford B. Hunt; Johnson Family; Samuel Kennedy; Kinney Family; Hannah Burnet Kinney; William Burnet Kinney; John J. H. Love; Augustus W. McDowell; Family; Isaac S. Mulford; Mary Philbrook; Edward Pierson; William Pierson; Harry E. Richards; Morton Robinson; Shippen Family; Jonathan Sweet; Terhune Family; William Turk; Lawrence Van Derveer; Felix H. Vann; H.C. Voorhees; William R. Ward; Stephen Wickes; H.S. Woodruff.

In addition to those organizations and agencies noted above, the holdings include materials from: Association for Children of New Jersey; Blue Cross/Blue Shield of New Jersey; Chatham Board of Health; New Jersey Overseers of the Poor (Chester Township, East Windsor, Livingston); Children’s Aid Society; Essex County New Jersey Coroner’s Office; Essex Medical Union; Female Union School Association; Middlesex County; New Jersey Board of Medical Examiners; Newark Female Charitable Society; Newark Medical Association; Newark Orphan Asylum; Physicians Club of Newark; Protestant Foster Home Society; Randolph Township of New Jersey; Stanford Pharmacy; Terril Funeral Home; Union Beneficial Society (Salem, NJ); West Jersey Homeopathic Hospital School of Nursing; Whittier House.

| CONTACT | Douglas Winterich, Associate Director |
| DESCRIPTION | The structure of the Old Barracks Museum was built in 1758 by the Colony of New Jersey to house British troops. It is the only nonfortified barracks built for the French and Indian War left in North America. During the American Revolution, it served different military-related uses, including the housing of Hessians and Loyalist refugees before the Battle of Trenton and as a military hospital in 1777 and, again, after the Battle of Yorktown. |
| HOLDINGS | ARTIFACTS: General instruments: reproductions of medical “tools” of the 18th century, used in the program of the site visit. |
| SITE | NAME: Old Barracks Museum
LOCATION: Barrack Street, between West State and Lafayette Streets, Trenton. |
| HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE | This is the only military structure remaining from the Battle of Trenton. It served as an inoculation hospital and now interprets Revolutionary War medicine on a regular basis. For group tours, interpreters in historical costume take on the role of army doctor, orderly or nurse. For “walk-in” visitors, there is a more traditional third person interpretation. Both methods serve to add another dimension to 18th century medicine. |
| SERVICES | Daily, 10:00 am to 5:00 pm, major holidays excepted. Reservations required for groups of 10 or more. The collection is accessible by appointment, in writing, with the Associate Director. |

DESCRIPTION
To discover and identify records of local history and encourage preservation, whether by the society or by others, and to provide activities and services to interest the community in its past.

HOLDINGS

SERVICES
Visits to the Society’s historic sites (Dutch stone house, 1752; Bedensville School House, 1853) are by appointment. There are no facilities for making reproductions.

COMMENTS
Because of this society’s interest in (although not connected to) the “New Jersey State Village for Epileptics”, it is appropriate to include here this institution which has some historical significance. Established in Skillman, Montgomery Township, in 1898, the Village was a center for the housing of and caring for epileptics rather than placing them with the mentally ill. It eventually developed into a self-sufficient community of over 1,500 patients and a 1,000 acre campus and farm. With changes in the patient population, type of care, and direction, it was renamed in 1953 the New Jersey Neuropsychiatric Institute and in 1978 the North Princeton Developmental Center. A large number of the original buildings are still standing although many of those are in serious disrepair. The institution officially closed on May 17, 1998. Letters, reports, photographs, etc. concerning the Village have been deposited in the New Jersey State Archives. For information about this collection, contact Karl Niederer, Director, 185 West State Street, CN 307, Trenton; (609) 633-8334. The Epilepsy Foundation of New Jersey is working to establish a museum at this site. For further information, contact Eric Joice, Executive Director, 429 River View Plaza, Trenton, NJ, 08611; (609) 392-4900.

ARTIFACTS

The Smith Library has a small but growing artifact collection, particularly of New Jersey subjects. Within the UMDNJ system, there is an extensive collection at the Robert Wood Johnson Medical School in Piscataway. This was formerly the artifacts collection of the Academy of Medicine of New Jersey and was donated in its entirety to the medical school. Selected objects are on display at the medical school in Piscataway. For information, contact Russell L. McIntyre, ThD, director of Programs in Medical Humanities, Robert Wood Johnson Medical School, (732) 235-4549, or Lois Densky-Wolff, New Jersey Medical School, (973) 972-7830.

SERVICES

The department is open Monday through Friday, 8:30 am to 4:30 pm. It is advisable to confirm this schedule with the archivist/librarian. Photocopying machines are available.
